Election referendums easily passed

Students line up for instructions on balloting procedure during the fall student government elections held Wednesday. In addition to electing student representatives,

by Marc Pacatte

The proposed legal service referendum and a constitutional revision passed easily in Wednesday's student government election.

Fourteen percent of the eligible voters, 1,412 students, turned out for the election.

Seventy percent of the voters approved the legal service, while 85 percent were in favor of the constitutional revision.

The revision calls for a change in the date of fall elections from the third Wednesday in November to the second.

In the three districts, 15 senators were elected to full-year seats and one half-year seat was filled.

Of the 1,412 who cast ballots in the at-large district, Bill Mueller, current speaker of the senate, led the field of candidates with 705 votes.

Also elected from the at-large district were Kim Howell with 549 votes, Cedric Chester with 528 votes, Donald Hejmanowski with 443 votes and Rick Colclasure with 326 votes.

Steve Haldi was elected to the half-year post to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of Dean Prokos.

In the residence hall district, Terry Teele led in the voting with 641 votes. Also elected from the residence hall district were Annamarie Loconte with 345 votes, Tony Parascondola with 333 votes, Dave Hedeman with 305 votes and R.W. Monroe with 299 votes.

In the off-campus district elections, Amy Bardis led with 272 votes. Also elected were Derek Storm with 231 votes, Jack Woods with 227, Kent Kovak with 203 votes and Kenneth Potts with 177.

Mark Hudson, election committee co-chairman, said that the 14 percent turnout was small, but that it was "bigger than we expected since there were no executive offices to be filled."

Bylaw violation noted in election

by Marc Pacatte

"Information sheets" supportive of the student legal service referendum were distributed to early voters during Wednesday's election in violation of election rules.

The handbills, written by Student Senator Bob Glover, were labeled a "program description" and were slanted toward passage of the referendum.

The referendum eventually was approved by a 994 to 358 vote and now must be approved by Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin and then the Board of Governors.

The handbills were removed before 10 a.m. by election committee members after the members were advised that they violated election rules which prohibit campaign literature in polling places.

The last paragraph of the handbills violated section three of the student senate election rules. It states "The (elections) Committee will remove all posters, etc., in view of the polls before they open on election day, and will keep the area clear of posters and handbills."

The last paragraph of the handbill said "We strongly feel the proposed STUDENT LEGAL SERVICE will be an asset to the students of Eastern Illinois University."

Mark Hudson, elections committee co-chairman, had the pamphlets removed, but later redistributed them with the last paragraph cut off.

The referendum will raise student fees $2 per semester to fund the legal service.

The student legal service will be staffed by a full-time attorney, pre-law intern and a legal secretary. The program's finances will be administered by the Director of Student Activities.

It will be governed by a nine-member board including a Coles County attorney, a pre-law faculty member and two other faculty members. Four students and the director of the legal service will also be on the governing board.

The service was proposed to handle landlord-tenant disputes, consumer fraud cases, misdemeanors and city traffic disputes.

Iranians await word from immigration bureau

by Holly Headland

Although the seven Iranian students at Eastern have been ordered to report to the Chicago Bureau of Immigration, they will not go until their adviser, Brigitte Chen receives word from the bureau, Chen said Wednesday.

The Iranians, who are at Eastern on student visas, were told to report to the bureau in Chicago to have their visas checked following the outbreaks of violence in Iran and the United States, Chen said.

The action was ordered by the U.S. government in the wake of the takeover of Iran's U.S. Embassy by Iranian students nearly two weeks ago. The Iranians are holding 60 Americans hostage in the embassy.

"I was told Monday in the phone call from the bureau that they would send a formal statement to me. I told the students to wait to go until I get the statement," Chen said.

Two Iranian students at Eastern said they have not checked into the immigration office yet, but both are planning to go. "Do we have another choice?" Hamid Ziaie, one of the students, asked.

Hamid Ziaie
U.S.-Iran situation 'crazy'

Ziaie said he thinks the situation between the U.S. and Iran is "crazy. I think what Khomeini is doing is wrong. He won't get the hostages back this way."

Khomeini is demanding the return

Torraj Bastar
Iranian's takeover of embassy was wrong of the deposed Shah of Iran in return for the release of the hostages.

The shah is receiving cancer treatment in a New York hospital.

Another Iranian student, Tooraj Bastar, said, "I don't agree with what they (the students) did. The way they did it is wrong. I know they want the shah. Before this happened Iran already asked the U.S. not to let the shah in. It's time for the U.S. not to support a murderer."

The students, both planning to graduate at the end of summer, 1980, have not been involved in any demonstrations like the ones that have been occurring on campuses all over the country, they said.

Both Ziaie and Bastar said they are here for an education and do not want to become involved in demonstrations against the United States.

Another Iranian, Shokooh Moitehedi, said she did not want to comment on the current situation between Iran and the United States because she had been away from Iran for so long (four years) she did not feel her opinion would be "right".

Although the students said they feel the shah should not be kept in the United States, Ziaie said, "The students shouldn't be in the embassy. It is a part of the U.S. land and they shouldn't be doing it."

President Carter froze all official Iranian assets in the United States to prevent Iranian authorities from withdrawing several billion dollars from American banks.

In order to do so, Carter called the situation in Iran a threat to the national security, foreign policy and economy and declared a "national emergency to deal with that threat."

That finding was required in order for the president to invoke the freeze under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act.

A preliminary check with the Federal Election Commission "led us to believe" Mayor Jane Byrne may be making an illegal $5,000 contribution to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's campaign, the head of President Carter's campaign in Illinois said Wednesday.

Robert Torricelli, Carter's Illinois coordinator, said he believes Mrs. Byrne's campaign fund, from which the contribution would come, is not currently registered with the commission.

"It would be extraordinarily unusual for a mayoral campaign fund to be registered with the FEC," Torricelli said.

He added that unless her campaign committee is registered as a political action committee under FEC rules, the $5,000 contribution Byrne has announced from the proceeds of an Oct. 15 fund-raising dinner — at which Carter spoke — would be illegal.

A federal immigration judge has ordered a 30-year-old Iranian who attempted to enter the United States as a student sent out of the country, a spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Chicago said Wednesday.

Lawyers, specialists outline students civil rights

by Laura Rzepka
Students' civil rights concerning housing, religion, women, abortion and criminal justice were evaluated in commemoration of the ratification of the Bill of Rights Tuesday by a number of local authorities.

The authorities spoke to a group of about 50 people in the University Union Oakland Room Tuesday night.

Attorney Alan Spaniol focused on student housing rights in the case of Mary Fry v.s. Board of Governors.

Spaniol is the attorney for Fry, an Eastern student who filed suit for not being exempted from the university's freshmen-sophomore housing policy in 1978.

Courts have ruled that a university can force students to live in the residence halls if they have an educational purpose, Spaniol said.

Attorney William Paris said, "We all know the real reason they (the university) require the students to live in dorms is to collect the rent."

Spaniol said the university has allowed freshmen and sophomore sorority members to live in greek houses. "The greek system has proven itself as an educational asset," he said.

Fry will have to prove that it is a basic tenet of her religion to live in the Covenant House which will be hard to do," Spaniol said.

Spaniol said a case involving students affiliated with the Newman community at Louisiana University resulted in the court allowing these students to live in Newman Hall because there was no rational basis for differentiation.

"I would hope the decision in this case (Fry case) would be the same. If the policy at Eastern is differentiation the question is—has the administration applied it correctly," Spaniol said.

"The Board of Governors is concerned with the religious atmosphere as a possibility of leading to a cult. The question is—is it the responsibility of the university to protect students from the possible denomination of a cult," he added.

Paris also spoke about religion in his presentation of church-state separation.

"When the founding fathers sat down to write the Constitution there were many denominations present so they decided there would be no mention of a God," Paris said.

The only incident mentioned involving church-state separation in Coles County was with Lake Land College.

A special room was set aside for the schooling and counseling of Catholics, Paris said. This has no bearing on the Buzzard Educational Building auditorium which the Newman community uses for Mass, he added.

Any group could use the facilities, it is not set aside just for Catholics, Paris said.

Concerning women's rights, Andrea Bonnicksen of the political science department said, "Illinois is one of the active states in rooting out discriminatory laws."

Until 1970 Illinois had many discriminatory laws but through court action and legislative action they were changed," Bonnicksen said.

She pointed out that the prostitution charge is a Class A misdemeanor for women and it is a Class B charge for patronizers of prostitutes.

"It is very rare for police to pick up patronizers," she added.

Women also need to be aware of abortion rights, said Lorraine Lathrop, chairman of the East Central Illinois Chapter of the National Abortion Rights Action League.

"Many women are unaware that abortion is legal in Coles County," Lathrop said. "Abortion exists in theory but not in practice."

Women don't have access to abortions in Coles County," she added.

John Elder, Coles County assistant public defender, spoke to the group on the rights of the accused.

Persons in Coles County may be denied the right to see a judge when they are brought to jail, Elder said.

Credit hours offered for travel in Europe

A European studies program in which students can earn up to four hours of credit in various departments is open to approximately 20 Eastern students, Wolfgang Schlauch, European studies director, said.

The 23-day program which will cost approximately $1,160 runs from May 13 until June 5. Students will travel to Luxembourg, Paris, East and West Berlin and other cities.

An organizational meeting of all students who are interested in the program will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Coleman Hall Room 222.

Iran solution

Editor,
What is the solution to the Iranian dilemma?

We have had great political leaders, economists and journalists give their thoughts on this question. As a "layman" without any knowledgeable education on world affairs, the only solution that is so obvious to me is have the shah go home voluntarily.

If the effect of the cancerous tumor is going to be a terminal one, can you imagine the historical value and prestige he would receive with this decision? We speak of 'dying with dignity'.

Would this not be a more glorious death of dignity than dying "inch by inch" with terminal cancer!

What more esteem can one earn than that of solving a world crisis and saving more than seventy lives.

Jeanine Reynolds

Poor policy

Editor,
In light of the recent events taking place in Iran, I propose that we politely ask the shah to leave this country and that we deport the thousands of Iranian students (whose presence serves only to disrupt our country). Our present policy, if there is indeed one, serves only to humiliate the U.S.

The high price we continue to pay for Iranian oil borders on desperation for not only do we endanger the lives of our embassy personnel but we have gone so far as to deplete our own reserves of heating oil in a feeble attempt to appease the fanatic Persians.

One only wonders if by recognizing the bloody Khomeini regime how far this country will go in order to preserve the precious flow of Iranian crude.

In the sixties and seventies, we pumped billions of dollars worth of military and economic aid into Iran while at the same time "gently scolding" the shah for his policy of torturing his people.

It's no surprise that the upheaval that followed his ouster came as such a surprise when the state department was responsible for following such an ambiguous policy.

The price we pay is a further humiliation not only abroad but in our own country as well at the hands of the Iranian students, who are supported by our hard-earned tax dollars so that they can attend our finest universities, whose recent activities have included numerous desecrations against our monuments and harangues against our way of life.

Had it not been for close multi-millionaire associates, who were instrumental in high government circles, the shah would have never been permitted to enter this country for treatment.

He is one of the richest men in the world so surely he can afford to go to another country for treatment. His presence only furthers the complexity of the Iranian situation and is an obstacle to saving the lives of the remaining Americans in Iran.

It is indeed sad that we still follow the good intentions of men like Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger when it comes to providing aid to the ailing shah but won't take the necessary steps to protect our embassy personnel.

Unfortunately their lives are intricately wound around a last-ditch effort to save our fragile diplomatic ties with that country.

The price of oil is indeed becoming too high!!

Booters dump Western in regional

by Kathy Klisares

Head soccer coach Schellas Hyndman said before Wednesday's NCAA Division II Midwest Regional match that whoever was the better team that day would win, and the Panthers, 3-1 victory over Western Illinois proved who indeed was the better team.

Eastern dominated the first half, taking 10 shots on goal and putting in two of them as compared to Western's six shots for one goal. "I think that the first half was the best I've seen us play," Hyndman said. "We really worked well together."

Striker Gordon Prempeh made the first of two goals in the 28th minute of the first half by placing a shot in the left corner off a cross from co-captain Ross Ongaro.

Following up in the 34th minute, co-captain John Josza sent a head ball to the same corner of the net with an assist from midfielder Fernando Beer to give the Panthers a 2-0 lead just before the half—or so they thought.

Western's Leathernecks battled back with a goal scored by Tony Christie on an assist from Don Murphy just 20 seconds before the half. "Their only goal was a defensive error on our part," Hyndman said.

"We should have just kicked it out of bounds completely when they got close to the goal with only 20 seconds left and they never should have had that goal," the coach said.

Even if it shouldn't have had that one, Western didn't score again the entire second half, but made an attempt with four shots on goal for the second period.

From the Panther perspective, the last minute goal put a damper on their enthusiasm in the second half as was evident in the drop of shots on goal from 10 to three. "After they scored, we lost our momentum and we got scared," Hyndman said. "We could have had a 2-0 lead and been able to play a ball possession style second half and slowed down the game, but once they scored, the pressure was on."

Eastern took the pressure well and played with a "good deal of composure" Hyndman said.

"They were determined to win and people were making good moves," the coach added. "They set up well and all the goals were scored on good crosses."

Finishing out the game the same way they began, Ongaro assisted Prempeh on a shot in the 32nd minute that rounded out the Panthers' 3-1 win.

Eastern will advance to the second phase of the playoff elimination as it travels to the University of Missouri-St. Louis (UMSL) for a 1 p.m. game Sunday. The winner of that match goes on to national finals in Miami, Fla.

Although Eastern was shutout 2-0 earlier in the season by the Rivermen, Hyndman is not hesitant about the upcoming game. "This game against UMSL is our ticket to Florida, and we're looking ahead, not back," he said.

Women harriers to shoot for national crown

by Dave Claypool

An excited Eastern women's cross country team will travel to Tallahassee, Fla., Saturday in hopes of capturing the first AIAW Division II national title.

The Panthers will be trying to add the national crown to the state and regional championships they won on their way to the AIAW finals.

Senior twin sisters Robin and Ruth Smith head the list of five Panthers who will compete in the team's final meet which will take place on the course at Florida State University at 11 a.m.

Robin, who finished first in the state and second in the Region 5 meet earlier this fall, has led the Panther squad all season.

Running close behind Robin has been Ruth, who will be competing in her second national meet after sitting out last season. Ruth was fifth in the regional.

"We're really excited and happy to have the chance to run this weekend," Robin said. "Having divisions this year makes it even more exciting because we have a better chance at winning a national title."

The AIAW realigned this year into three divisions rather than two, so Eastern does not have to compete against the larger schools in the national finals.

Ruth agreed with her sister, "I don't think that we'll realize it until we get on the plane Thursday. We're just trying to go into it as any other race."

Joining the Smith pair will be the season long number three runner, freshman Gina Sperry. Although Sperry will compete for a national title in her first season as a Panther, she cited no extra pressure for the fact.

"I have always set goals for myself and running for a national title has been one of them," Sperry said. "It's a real honor to be so lucky to run in such a big meet as a freshman, but I don't feel any extra pressure because I'm a freshman."

Senior Linda Lomax and freshman Sonia Olsson round out the Panther lineup for the trip to Florida. Olsson and Lomax finished 10th and 22nd respectively last week in the Panther victory at the Lansing, Mich. regional meet.

Although coach John Craft admitted that the harriers knew nothing about their competition for this weekend, he didn't feel that it would hamper the women's chances.

"Sure it helps to know something about who you are going to run against, but I don't feel that it will be any major problem," Craft said.

"We will just assume that they are better than us and run our best," Ruth said.

Robin, who finished 35th in last season's national final, hopes to better her performance this Saturday.

"I just want to run my best and place somewhere near the top," Robin said. "I would like to see us run our best as a team too."

When asked for his feelings about the possibility of a national title, Craft said the women will be going to Florida thinking that they can do well.

"I hate to be presumptuous and put us in the limelight, but I feel that we have a good chance to win or be in the top three," Craft said.
